After I upgraded my computer to Windows 7 from Windows Vista Ultimate, I didn't have any problems booting the Windows 7 Live CD. Now I'm running Windows 7 Ultimate 32-bit, everything seems to be fine, except for when I boot the Windows 7 Live CD. I even have the slow boot option selected in the boot options: Any other options I'm not seeing might be important? Any reason why my Windows 7 Live CD is so much slower (slower still on my VmWare virtual machine) than it was under Windows Vista Ultimate? A: Probably due to an old hardware upgrade. I'm not a huge Live CD user, but the slower load times always annoyed me. The Windows 7 bootup time will be much the same, but you may find that the LiveCD is faster. Just tested the Windows 7 32bit ISO, loaded and booted in under 5 min: Slow booting with VMWare: It's normal for computer manufactures to make changes to a computer's BIOS and ACPI implementations to improve performance. The time it takes to load the Windows installation disc from a USB stick is almost always slower than it should be. There will be a specific time when the USB bus is fully available on the motherboard, and then you will need to wait to see what point this happens.
